FROM MAIZE TO AMAZING
OPPORTUNITY KNOCKS FOR CORN GROWERS OF AMERICA

Detroit, MI- Recovery I, Inc., of West Bloomfield Michigan, led by its founder and President, Adria Brown, wants to awaken the corn industry, to a new market potential, and great business opportunity: Treating shelled, barren corn cobs, as another harvest, (such as corn, or squash, or beans).

Recovery I, Inc., an environmental company, uses natural, dried corn cobs, known as the "Golden Retriever", to absorb oil and chemical spills.

Until now, tilling these cobs, back into the soil, has been the "way" for generations, particularly with the smaller farmers. These "barren cobs" have been considered to be valueless, with little return on their investment, compared to the time and labor it took to pick them up. Very soon, that old concept will be gone! Life, as you have known it, is about to change!

"We are looking forward to developing a new and harmonious partnership with the Corn Growers of America", says Brown. "Imagine if you will that these "valueless cobs" are really diamonds in the rough", Brown said.

"Once prepared, under the patented process, the cobs dramatically and quickly, absorb oil and chemical spills, on any body of water, and their shore lines. It works rapidly, efficiently, and cost effectively. The process though simple, is powerful", she continued.

Scientists and engineers alike, from the United States as well as from other countries, have acknowledged Brown's process, and the benefits of utilizing this technique particularly for oil or chemical spills.

"The return for your efforts, by considering barren cobs as a new harvest, rather than refuse, will shake up and wake up the industry, and will bring increased and renewed prosperity! They are not just for Ethanol anymore"! Contracts are forthcoming, and soon our work will begin", she added.

Recovery I, Inc., looks forward to meeting the Corn Growers of America, at one of the local or national conferences, so that they may demonstrate the magic of their process, the "Golden Retriever". As we say in our company, "From Maize To Amazing", she concluded.
